~A Note About the Seminar Series and Presenter~

This workshop is aimed at helping all educational stakeholders meet the challenge of providing a school experience that enables all learners to reach their potential, graduate and make a positive contribution to society. The issues of high stakes testing, scarce resources and un-funded mandates continue to plague our systems. Dr. Noguera has over 100 publications in the areas of school reform, the connection between race, culture and student achievement, educational equity, and leadership among many others. He also had delivered dozens of presentations on all facets of the achievement gap. His work is referenced by all educational leadership groups, teacher unions, school boards, and several other noteworthy organizations to which he has delivered keynote addresses. Dr. Noguera will undoubtedly engage all attendees in a provocative look at what we really need to do to close the achievement gap and give all students the chance at success they truly deserve.

Presenter:

Dr. Pedro Noguera

Pedro Noguera, Ph.D. is a professor in the Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development at New York University.

He is also the Executive Director of the Metropolitan Center for Urban Education and the co-Director of the Institute for the study of Globalization and Education in Metropolitan Settings (IGEMS). An urban sociologist, Noguera's scholarship and research focus on the ways in which schools are influenced by social and economic conditions in the urban environment. Noguera has served as an advisor and engaged in collaborative research with several large urban school districts throughout the United States. He has also done research on issues related to education and economic and social development in the Caribbean, Latin America and several other countries throughout the world. Between 2000 and 2003, Noguera served as the Judith K. Dimon Professor of Communities and Schools at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. From 1990 to 2000, he was a Professor in Social and Cultural Studies at the Graduate School of Education and the Director of the Institute for the Study of Social Change at the University of California, Berkeley.
